Rules of Engagement in Live-Interaction Sessions

The Experts in Humanity Project™ strives to uphold the following rules of conduct during all live interaction sessions. The psychological safety of all participants is paramount. To ensure that, The Experts in Humanity Project™ and Josephine Lombardi Consulting would like to clarify what is considered appropriate behaviour in these types of settings:

- Participants are asked to respect that live interaction sessions are intended to be a safe, supportive environment for participants to share their experiences, thoughts and ideas
- All participants are asked to conduct themselves in a mindful and considerate manner towards their fellow participants, regardless of personal differences.

- Confidentiality is crucial—information acquired during discussion should not be shared outside the session.
- Each participant should be willing to create a positive, respectful and trustworthy environment for everyone.
- In case of necessity, feel free to use the “raise hand” feature in ZOOM and request assistance.
